A new start for EurotunnelPlus

Eurotunnel has terminated, with effect from 16 August 2005, the contract with TransFerry for the commercial operation, across the whole of Europe, of the brand and services of EurotunnelPlus.

In this context, Eurotunnel has put in place systems to allow it to organise the service in response to customer needs. A network of Eurotunnel subsidiaries has been established to enable the group, via locally based teams and, in the case of Germany and Italy, through new partnerships, to provide the personalised service customers demand.

Jacques Gounon, Eurotunnel Chief Executive, said, “Bringing this activity back in-house gives us the opportunity to bring an even better quality of service to our customers across the whole of Europe”.

Notes for Editors

EurotunnelPlus is the registered name, owned by Eurotunnel, used for the commercialisation of its Freight Shuttle Services to transporters across the whole of Europe, with the exception only of Key Accounts which have always been handled in-house.

TransFerry is the company that had been contracted to commercialise the EurotunnelPlus brand since 1 July 2002.
